

AVO: Surely you have done this.

Sat quietly somewhere.

Closed your eyes.

And wondered...

...if I lived 100 years, what wonders would I see?

Where would I go?

How would I get there?

How would I age? Or not.

How would I sleep?

And work? And play?

Who would I share the world with?

Would we all have plenty to eat? To drink?

Would we have peace?

Surely you have done this. And surely you will sleep without the answers.

But just as surely there are those who never sleep.

Who wonder with their eyes wide open.

Not of what might be.

But of what will.
